ABOUT ME

I am a web developer based in Greece with a BSc (Hons) in Information Technology, specializing in Software Development from Deree – The American College of Greece (2020). I focus on building reliable and maintainable web applications using modern web technologies.

I have a strong foundation in core web technologies including HTML, CSS, and JavaScript, and I primarily work with PHP and the Laravel framework to develop structured web applications and backend-driven systems. I focus on clean architecture, well-structured code, and practical user interfaces that solve real-world problems.

Alongside Laravel development, I also work with WordPress as a development platform, including custom theme development using both classic and modern block-based approaches, WooCommerce development and customization, and plugin modifications.

I am committed to continuous learning and continuously refine my workflow as web technologies evolve, approaching each project as an opportunity to deepen my understanding and improve the quality of the solutions I build.
